Using Estimated Breeding Values (EBV) and Indexes

When buying a ram, buyers should use the Breed Benchmark to identify where an animal's EBVs rank within the Breed.

The way in which an animal grows and develops is determined by both its breeding and a host of non-genetic factors such as management and feeding.

The aim of Texel Recording is to work out how much of each animal's performance is due to its breeding and this information is expressed using Estimated Breeding Values (EBVs) for specific traits. An overall Selection Index incorporates the commercially economic important EBVs for Terminal Sires (growth, muscle and fat) whilst including gigot muscularity and an additional penalty for animals with very low-fat depth EBVs.

The whole of the Texel registered database is incorporated into an analysis that enhances the National Analysis for the Breed and enables all breeders to participate in a single, whole breed across-flock evaluation.

Litter size EBV (lambs/ewe)	Breeding potential to produce prolific female progeny
8-Week weight EBV (kg)	Selection on high EBVs for 8-week weight will result in faster growing lambs to weaning
Maternal ability EBV (kg)	This is the maternal component of the 8-week weight measurement. High figures indicate breeding lines where females perform well as mothers – maternal care and milking ability
Scan weight EBV (kg)	Selection on this trait will increase growth rate to scanning (21 weeks of age)
Muscle depth EBV (mm)	Choosing animals with high muscle depth EBVs will increase lamb muscularity and hence the lean meat content of the carcase
Fat Depth EBV (mm)	Selection for negative fat depth EBVs will reduce fat levels in the carcase or enable lambs to be taken to greater carcase weights without becoming over fat
Gigot	Selection for High figures will enhance gigot muscularity.

No Lot or Lots shall be removed from the sale premises until paid for and a pass-out slip obtained from the Auctioneer's clerk but each and every Lot shall immediately at the fall of the hammer be considered as delivered and be and remain in every respect at the absolute risk and expense of the respective purchaser or purchasers thereof and shall be removed from the sale premises at the purchaser's expense.
